

Travelers investing the two weeks required to drive from the U.S./Mexico border through C. America tend to do their homework. When its your turn to drive the Pan-American Highway, check out Drive Me Loco , an online travel guide that is updated frequently. There is also an eBook with details on roadtripping through Mexico and C. America. I've driven all over Mexico and this guide is worthwhile.

Two weeks is the time required to drive (not enjoy) Mexico , Guatemala , El Salvador , Honduras ,

Nicaragua

, Costa Rica

, and

Panama

. It is a good idea to allow another two weeks so you can drive every other day, leaving time for exploring the countryside.

That's my plan and I'm sticking to it. Departing Aug. 14. our destination is

Parque Amistad

, an international park and world heritage site... my family's new home in the shadow of

Volcan Baru

. For posts from our journey, visit my travel journal at www.latinamericantours.blogspot.com

Mexico, Pan-American Highway, Travel Mexico, Drive in Mexico, Parque Amistad, Volcan Baru, Guatemala, El Salvador, Honduras, Nicaragua, Costa Rica, Panama, Changes in Latitude, Stephen Kaczor, Mexico, Mexico Real Estate, Mexico Travel, Travel Mexico, Living in Mexico, Retire in Mexico, Mexico Retirement, Retirement destinations, Baby Boomers, Boomers in Mexico, Gracias Mexico